DETAILED ACTION

This Office action is responsive to the amendment filed May 30, 2006.

Claims 1, 3-39 and newly added claims 60-62 are pending in this application.

Claims 2 and 40-59 have been cancelled.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. Claims 1, 3, 8-14, 19-35, and 60-62 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Wood et al. (RE. 36,469).

The figures and reference numbers referred to in this office action are used merely to indicate an example of a specific teaching and are not to be taken as limiting.

Regarding claims 1, 3, 8-14, 19-35, and 60-62, Wood et al. (see specifically figures 3, 5, 8 and 12) disclose a electronic module comprising monolithic microelectronic substrate including a plurality of unseparated integrated circuit dice (10) therein (see Fig. 5), and a multiplayer redistribution structure comprising interleaved conductive (22) and insulation layers (24), the redistribution structure extending across a side of the substrate to overlie at least portions of each of the plurality of unseparated integrated circuit dice (10), the redistribution structure including at least one conductive layer including a compressive edge connector contact (26) facing opposite the side of the substrate and electrically coupled (solderless) to the unseparated integrated circuit dice (10), which comprise memory devices. Wood et al. further disclose a support of protective layer (40) of metal affixed to a surface of the substrate (10) and configured to support the connector contact (26) to serve as a heat sink. Wood et al. also disclose the connector contacts (26) being configured to mate with respective contacts of an edge connector that is configured to engage an edge of the substrate (Col. 8, lines 31+). Wood et al. disclose a second protection layer (42) affixed to the redistribution structure (12) (see Fig. 4).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 4-7, 15-18, and 36-39, are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Wood et al. (RE. 36,469) in view of Saia et al. (5,874,770 of record).

Regarding claims 4-7, 15-18, and 36-39, Wood et al. disclose the claimed invention as detailed above except for teaching the redistribution structure including a passive electronic device such as a capacitor, a resistor or an inductor.

Forming a passive electronic device such as a capacitor, a resistor or an inductor, in a redistribution structure is common in semiconductor art as disclosed by Saia et al. in figures 7-12, Col. 6, line 30 to Col. 8, lines 24. It would have been obvious one skilled in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Wood et al.'s module by forming a passive electronic device in the redistribution structure as taught by Saia et al. By doing so it would be advantageous to have an efficient, cost effective, and space-saving fabrication method (see Saia's Col. 2, lines 30+), and such modification is held to be within the ordinary designing ability expected of a person skilled in the art.

Conclusion

6. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1, 3-39 and newly added claims 60-62 have been fully considered, but they are deemed to be moot in view of the new grounds of rejection.

7. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action because the newly added limitations (e.g., the underlined portions) into claims 1, 12-13, 23, 27 and newly added claims 60-62 raise new issues that would require further consideration and/or search. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37

Art Unit: 2891

CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
